Find your unique style

Every practice has a personality, and the look and feel of your space speaks volumes about yours. What mood do you want to create? Serene and spa-like? Warm and welcoming? High tech with a human touch? With A-dec Inspire™ and Preference® furniture collections beautiful range of colors, patterns and textures, the possibilities are as unlimited as your imagination.

We've gathered a few unique room designs and color palettes on the following pages. Use them as a starting point to help you visualize your own space, and inspire you to create something that's all your own.

Plan like a professional

There's more to successful design planning than simply choosing cabinets and colors. These practical considerations will help you achieve optimal results:

- 1. Design your working environment first. Look for equipment that minimizes physical movement and reduces body strain so that you—and your staff—can stay healthy, comfortable and practice longer. And remember to budget for tools and equipment along with your operatory furniture.
- 2. Plan for ample sterilization. When materials flow smoothly, so does your stream of patients. Sterilization furniture with well-designed instrument processing and proper storage ensures efficient workflow, eliminates backtracking, and shows patients that you're serious about safety.
- 3. Keep it simple. Consistency creates efficiency, so keep your operatory layouts the same. Having sinks, equipment and storage in the same place across treatment rooms reduces training time and produces a more streamlined workflow.
- 4. Look at total value. Does the purchase price include functional items such as sinks, faucets, power outlets and installation? Consider the total cost of product ownership throughout its life in your practice. Investing in quality and reliability pays off in the long run.
